Booker DeVaughn Lecture Series

On October 29, 2010 David Considine, a paranormal investigator and religious demonologist who studied under Ed and Lorraine Warren (the original investigators of the Amityville Horror case) lectured at Three Rivers. A veteran of the paranormal field for 23 years, he worked on episodes of the Discovery Channel's television program "A Haunting" including an episode that aired about a haunted house in Seymour, Connecticut.

This past Halloween weekend what did you do? Many went on haunted hay rides, costume parties and trick or treating on Halloween night. Some stayed at home, lit candles and watched scary movies. Whatever it was you did, hopefully you didn't miss the frightening opportunity to see "Night of the Haunted," featuring Dave Considine, Lay Religious Demonologist and Paranormologist. The experience was skin crawling as everyone who attended learned the history behind paranormal activity. I had goose bumps the entire time and I dreaded the ride home for every little thing had me spooked. Greetings were made by Lecture Committee Chair members, Carol Lahan, Booker DeVaughn and President of Three Rivers, Dr. Grace Jones. Dr. Jones then introduced Considine. Considine is in his 23rd year as a career lay religious demonologist. He is one of the few in North America that has investigated hundreds of hauntings and has taken part in exorcisms. Considine started the night off with an introduction into everything he would be showing us. After that, people were glued to their seats waiting for what was coming next. He tested our knowledge on Halloween and where the study of paranormal activity originated. Considine was great with the audience. He had everyone tuned in and thinking of possible answers to questions and kept us all interested through out the entire program. He had our undivided attention. Hearing Considine's experiences gave us a glimpse of what being a lay religious demonologist is like and what to expect when encountering paranormal phenomena. It was entertaining and for some, quite valuable and certainly helped explain some of our own ghost stories.
